United Airlines Plane Hits Trees, High Tension Wires; Aircraft Demolished by Impact

Cleveland, Nov. 11 (AP)—United Airlines plane crashed into trees and high tension wires just north of Cleveland airport early today, killing the pilot and co-pilot and injuring 17 passengers and the stewardess.

The plane, flight 404 bound from Chicago to Boston, crashed during a rainstorm. The plane cleared the runway at 12:35 (Central Standard Time) and was due at Cleveland airport at 3:27 a. m. (EST).

The victims:

Pilot: L. Brown, 44, Chicago.

Co-pilot: Robert L. Arnold, 25, Hammond, Ind.

The plane was demolished as it spun into the ground, the engines being torn from the wings and the fuselage breaking in half.

Fred Pasko, a truck driver believed to be one of the few witnesses, said he noticed the plane about 2,000 feet north of the airport, flying low. He said the plane's landing lights were on and the landing gear was down.

"There was a flash as the plane hit some wires and the street lights went out," Pasko said. "Then the plane crashed into some trees, spun around and hit the ground."

Stewardess on the plane was Miss Betty Dobson, 25, of Chicago.

The passengers and stewardess were rushed to three Cleveland hospitals but half of them were released almost immediately after treatment for small cuts and bruises. Extent of injuries to the others was not available immediately.

The injured:

Stewardess Betty Dobson, 25, Madison, Wis., and Chicago, Ill.

Roscoe Davis, Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Miller, Shaker Heights, O.

Mrs. Clara D. Kern, Milton, Mass.

Albert Brady, Omaha, Neb.

Howard Cook, Independence, Mo.

G. S. Smith, Milwaukee, Wis.

Joseph Mascie, Cleveland and Boston, Mass.

William Hosford, Summerville, S. C.

Red Groups Are Victors In France

New Coalition Appears Probable, However, in Control of New 4th Republic

Shutout Dims Reds Ready to Assume Responsibilities That Come With Success

By ROBERT C. WILSON
Paris, Nov. 11 (AP)—The Communists emerged today as the strongest party in France's new Fourth Republic, but the outcome of yesterday's national election seemed unlikely to bring a strictly Left-Wing government.

On the basis of incomplete returns from balloting for a national assembly, some new coalition appeared probable in place of the combine of Popular Republicans (MRP), Communists, and Socialists which controls the current provisional government.

Prior to the election the Communist party and the MRP each promised if elected to shut out the other from any new cabinet, but the election results seemed to have made this impossible.

The Communists ousted President Georges Bidault's MRP from the leadership in the first constituent assembly elected Oct. 21, 1945, and lost in the second election last June 2.

Looks Like Thorez

On the strength of their gains, the Communists were in position to claim the premiership and were expected to advance Maurice Thorez for the post against almost certain opposition from nearly all other parties.

Party Secretary Jacques Duclos said the Communists were "ready to assume all the responsibilities implied by our great success."

But there seemed little chance they could form a Leftist majority in the legislature or in a cabinet. Anti-Marxist parties gained, too, while the Socialists lost heavily. As a result the MRP remained the possible spearhead of a powerful Anti-Communist bloc.

Interior ministry figures for 582 deputies elected from continental France, Corsica, Algeria and French West Africa gave the Communists 170 seats, the MRP, 159, the Socialists 95, the Leftist rally (mainly radical Socialists) 58, the Rightists (Republican party of Liberty and Gaullist Union) 52 and Independents 48.

Thus the Communists and Socialists, provided they could get together, would command 265 votes while the MRP, theoretically, could amass 269 with the radical Socialists and Rightists, not taking into account the predominantly Rightist character of many of the Independents.

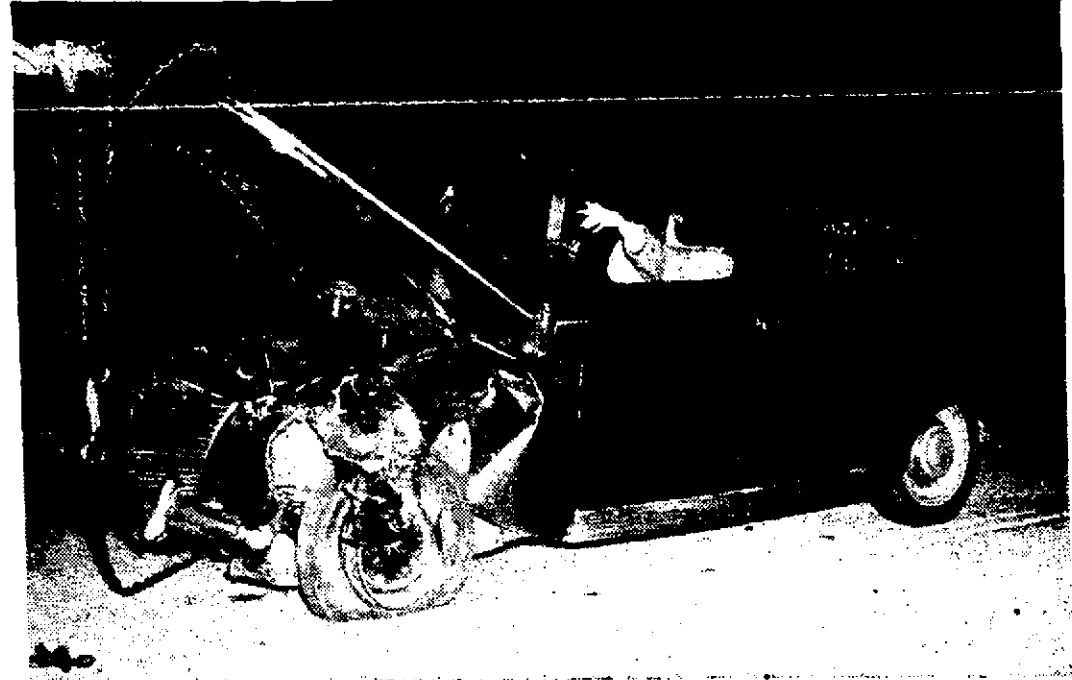

Won't Change Balance

Returns from the colonies on 36 additional seats are not expected to change the balance of power materially. The 618 deputies will service five years in the assembly, the nation's most powerful body under a constitution the voters adopted Oct. 13.

The national assembly will be convened on Page Eleven

Result of Route 28 Collision

This is how the automobile of Attorney William A. Kelly looked after a collision with the car of John Robert Battiloro of Ulster Park near the Saxe farm on Route 28, five miles from Kingston, Sunday night. Mr. Kelly, a resident of 165 Pearl street, was not injured, according to the sheriff's office report, neither was Battiloro. Miss Madja Duboveck, 18, of Kingston, a passenger in the Battiloro car suffered a slight cut over her left eye and was treated at the Kingston Hospital.

Cars of Attorney W. Kelly and J. R. Battiloro Collide on R-28 Last Night

Autos operated by John Robert Battiloro, 18, of Ulster Park, and William A. Kelly, 36, local attorney, of 165 Pearl street, were badly damaged in a collision near the John Saxe farm about five miles out of Kingston on Route 28, Sunday night about 10:20 o'clock.

Miss Madja Duboveck, 18, of 718 Broadway, who with her sister, Betty Duboveck, was riding with Battiloro, suffered a slight cut over her left eye and was taken to the Kingston Hospital for treatment. She was released after treatment.

According to the sheriff's report, the Kelly machine was proceeding toward Kingston when it sideswiped the Battiloro vehicle going in the opposite direction. No arrests were made.

Deputy Sheriff Harry D. Keator investigated the accident.

Seventeen Persons Are Killed In Week-End State Accidents

Allegre Death Is Called Suicide

Son of New York Man Dies From Gas in Summer Home

Jack Allegre, 34, son of Michael Allegre of 890 Albany avenue, Brooklyn, who owns a summer home at Highland, was found dead at the home of his father about a mile north of Highland on old route 9-W Sunday afternoon.

Death was due to gas and Coroner Jesse McHugh of Wallkill gave a suicide verdict.

Sunday afternoon Pietro Marino went to the Allegre home just north of Highland and as he approached the place he noticed the odor of gas. On entering the house he found Jack Allegre on the kitchen floor and two gas jets turned on. Without stopping to make further investigation he rushed to the State Troopers barracks and notified the officers.

Corporal John Metzger of the BCI and Corporal William Martin responded and turned off the gas and then made an investigation. They found Allegre had been dead for some time and notified Coroner McHugh.

Two Hunters Also Are Killed; Motors Are Mainly Responsible for Tragedies

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 11 (AP)—Two persons killed in hunting accidents were among at least 17 persons who met violent death upstate over the week-end.

Bertram Bandy, 34, of Louisville, died in a hunting mishap near St. Regis Falls, and John R. Toohy, 35, of Waterford, was wounded fatally when a gun, one of a group of boys discharged as he unloaded it. The boys had been hunting on the outskirts of Waterford.

Other deaths by communities:

Oxford—Perry A. Money, 18, fell into feed mixing machine.

Dorchester—James H. Jones, 77, struck by truck.

Crash Cause Not Known, Police Say

Carroll Slingsluff, 65, Has Skull Fracture; Companions, 76 and 83, in Hospital

Coroner Is Called Coroner Chipp Delivers Accidental Death Verdict

An automobile pleasure trip for three elderly Norristown, Pa., men en route from that city to Catskill ended in tragedy for the driver about noon Sunday on Route 209 near the Nevele mansion in Ellenville.

The latest victim to Ulster county's mounting toll of automobile tragedies was Carroll Slingsluff, 75, of Norristown, who died instantly after his 1942 Hudson left the main highway and dropped off into a gully.

His companions, Benjamin Hughes, 76, of 519 Haws street, Norristown, and William R. Fisher, 83, of 1018 De Kalb avenue, Norristown, were both injured but were reported in fair condition today at Veterans Memorial Hospital in Ellenville. The full extent of their injuries has not been determined.

Proceeding North According to the state troopers' version of the accident, Slingsluff was proceeding north along Route 209 when his car left the highway on the west side about 400 yards from the turn into the Nevele estate. The Slingsluff vehicle raced about 200 yards inside a guard rail parallel with the highway and then veered off sharply into a gully. The car was almost totally wrecked.

The accident was discovered by Frank Marshall, a pedestrian, who immediately notified authorities. Pulling's ambulance conveyed the two injured men to the Ellenville Hospital, while Mr. Slingsluff's body was taken to the Pulling Funeral Home.

Coroner Arthur C. Chipp issued a certificate of accidental death and said Slingsluff's death was caused by a broken neck, multiple fractures of the skull and a punctured left ventricle of the heart. The autopsy was performed by Dr. G. F. Schaffner, assisted by Dr. A. J. Ruggiero.

The accident was investigated by Sgt. Metcalf and Trooper O'Connor of the Wurtsboro state police station and Lynn Baker of the B.C.I. division of the state troopers.

Retired Banker Mr. Slingsluff, who has no near relatives, is reported to have been a retired banker. He served as teller for the Montgomery National Bank in Norristown for 36 years before his retirement. He was a life member of Lodge No. 190, F. & A. M. the Shriners, Tall Cedars of Lebanon, the Y.M.C.A., Philadelphia Consistory No. 382, and the Montgomery Hose and Engine Company. In addition he was a 32nd degree Mason. The body will be taken to Norristown for burial services.

Brands British 'Barbaric' In Palestine Affair

Philadelphia, Nov. 11 (AP)—U. S. Senator Claude A. Pepper (D-Fla.), who terms British practices in Palestine "barbaric," was on record today asking that the United States government "demand of the United Nations intervention in the Palestine affair."

"Let's remove Britain as a mandatory power over Palestine and put that unfortunate country under the protection of the United Nations," he told the executive committee of the American Jewish Congress last night.

Pepper also urged that the American government act to "put United Nations force in Palestine to do whatever policing is necessary."

Opens Negotiations Washington, Nov. 11 (AP)—John L. Lewis opened negotiations with Secretary of Interior J. A. Krug today on a pay increase for 400,000 soft coal miners threatening a new walkout November 20. The United Mine Workers' chief strode unsmiling into the big Interior Department conference room, head and shoulders above the other nine workers' officials. They included district presidents of soft coal producing areas.

President Places Wreath On Tomb; Ceremony Held

Realtor Is Victim Of Gas Poisoning

Aloysius F. Arthur, 49, Found in House on Foxhall Avenue

Aloysius Frank Arthur, 49, was found dead of gas poisoning in his home, 19 Foxhall avenue, Saturday noon by Officers Earl Schoonmaker and James Burns, who broke into the house and found him dead on the floor.

Coroner Ernest A. Kelly, following an investigation, issued a verdict of accidental death. According to the coroner it was evident that Mr. Arthur had placed the coffee pot on the gas stove and turned on the gas which failed to ignite.

The first intimation the police had was a telephone call shortly after 12 o'clock Saturday afternoon from Mrs. Frank Brennan who reported that Mr. Arthur had not been seen for several days. She said her husband had gone to the house but had been unable to obtain admittance. Her husband detected the odor of gas.

The two police officers found the doors locked when they reached the house and were forced to break into the house, finding it filled with gas.

The police called the coroner and Dr. Chester B. Van Gassbeck. The doctor reported that Arthur had apparently been dead about three days.

Mr. Arthur, who lived alone, was a former resident of New York, and for several years had been engaged in the real estate business in this city. He is survived by two brothers, Charles and Peter Arthur, both of New York.

Coroner Kelly turned the body over to Undertaker Henry Bruck, and private funeral services were held this morning from the Bruck Funeral Home, 27 Smith avenue, and thence to St. Mary's Church where a requiem Mass was offered. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Shipwrecked Trio Tells Of Being Missed by Navy

Okina, Nov. 11 (AP)—Three Americans who drifted for 12 days on the open sea in a 20-foot boat related to rescuers today how a Navy landing ship passed within 200 yards of their craft the first night but failed to see their flares.

The three, brought here by rescuer from Miyako island where they grounded on a reef, appeared in fair condition. They lost 10 to 15 pounds in weight and suffered cut feet in walking on coral.

They had drifted 180 miles from Okinawa, whence they had set out on a short pleasure cruise.

The three were Stanley Myers, Philadelphia, Corp. Robert L. Ham of Obetz, Ohio, and P.F.C. Harold J. Ryan, Troy, N. Y.

Work of Students in Music Is Reviewed As Exceptional; Concert Closes Festival

The thrill found in musical teamwork and the youthful striving for perfection was transmitted to the audience at the combined concert which ended the two-day Sectional All-State Music Festival at Kingston High School Saturday night. The performance was exceptional and inspiring.

Each of the 450 students who attended the festival participated in the concert in one of the four organizations: girls' choir, mixed chorus, orchestra or band. Each group was led by a distinguished conductor and much interest was also shown in the styles used by the directors. No one of the conductors could promise a finished performance but rather an outstanding one doing the best possible with only two days of rehearsals together.

Miss Helen Hosmer, director of music in Hartford, Conn., public schools, had the distinction of opening the program. The first selection was the sacred "Thanks Be to Thee" by Handel-Douty followed by Shvedof-Roepper's

We Have no Other Guide. Theirs also was an excellent performance as they varied the program with the novelty about the clock. Pretense, by Clokey. The group was well-balanced and sang with fine tonal qualities. The orchestra performance was remarkable considering the difficulties with which Ole Windigstad, noted Norwegian symphony conductor, had to cope. The music was most advanced for the group who had registered for orchestra, but the fact that the group were able to perform as creditably as it did shows the influence of a great director even with the young inexperienced players. Only two movements of Tchaikovsky's Fifth Symphony in the program: the first and fourth. The last was the better with its opportunity for grand crescendos and the vigorous climax.

Fennell Is Presented

To close the program Frederick Fennell, colorful band director from the Eastman School of Music, was presented.

Father McDonald of Rosendale Transferred

The Rev. William J. McDonald, who for the past 10 years was pastor of St. Peter's Church in Rosendale, announced Sunday at the Masses that he has been transferred to the Sacred Heart Church in Highland Falls.

His successor at the Rosendale Church has not been announced. Father McDonald since taking over the pastorate at St. Peter's has made a number of improvements to the church property and the parochial school.

Falls on Auto Jack

Mrs. Beatrice Schonmaker of Rock Tavern suffered an injured leg Saturday when she fell on John street. She was conveyed to the Kingston Hospital in the Conner ambulance. According to the police report her husband was busy fixing a flat tire on their auto when she stumbled over the jack he was using to raise the car.

Pacific Islands Are Without Any Formidable Bases Now

By ROBERT M. FARRINGTON
Honolulu, Nov. 11 (AP)—The mandated islands of the Pacific over which the United States is seeking to retain control contain no formidable chain of bases now, nor is any such chain planned, high Navy officers say.

Almost all of the wartime island bases seized from Japan in the bitterest fighting of the war today are rusting and crumbling into uselessness.

America's request for control under a United Nations trusteeship would cloak any future military development with an inspection-proof curtain. Newsweek, which has just completed a three-week tour, however, learned that:

From a military standpoint, there's nothing much to look at, now; and

No plans are in evidence now for any elaborate chain of fortifications in the future, although Guam and nearby Saipan might become rather highly developed bases.

The group visited Kwajalein, Majuro, Guam, Saipan, Okinawa, Pelelieu, Truk, and Tsingtao (China), headquarters of the U. S. Seventh Fleet. Okinawa is under Army control; the other islands are in Navy hands.

The one mandated island which seems highly important to Navy defense planning is Saipan—which, with U. S.-owned Guam, makes up the only real American base in the western Pacific.

Truk, Pelelieu (Palau) and other Japanese strongholds of the war are being ignored as military bases. Their guns and pillboxes were destroyed and their temporary Navy installations are rusting to powder.

Kwajalein has become a halfway house of the Pacific, a sort of island Grand Hotel, although far from luxurious. It is headquarters for the military government of the Marshall Islands, but that government is military in name.

Truman Advocates Armistice Between Labor and Capital

Washington, Nov. 11 (AP)—President Truman today advocated an armistice between labor and management in his first public statement since he jerked wage and price controls.

War-time curbs on the two groups were lifted after five years when Mr. Truman swept ceilings off all items except rents, sugar and rice. And rent increases appeared "inflationary" to some government officials.

The subject of a labor-management truce came up at the president's Armistice Day news conference when a reporter asked whether he had noted such proposals.

Mr. Truman replied that he had not heard of the suggestions, but said it is just what he has been urging since August, 1945, when the war ended.

The chief executive killed off the price and wage controls in a week-end order, declaring:

"I am convinced that the further continuance would do the nation's economy more harm than good."

At the same time he ordered executive placed "suspensory upon management and labor" the responsibility of adjusting to the new situation.

His de-control edict brought immediate promises from industry and business leaders that prices will be held at reasonable levels after a period of adjustment.

But some of these leaders, comparing their pledges with a big "IF"—If wage demands don't upset the applecart.

From labor unions, many of which already are seeking higher pay to offset living costs increases, there was nothing but silence on the President's action.

On the coal, steel, auto and several other fronts there is plenty of potential trouble if management and labor deadlock as they did a few months back.

Mr. Truman's order wiped out price ceilings of building materials as well as scores of other items, including clothing, automobiles, furniture, paper, steel and other metals.

Italian Voters Fail to Show Interest at Polls Sunday

Rome, Nov. 11 (AP)—Generally marked municipal elections in Rome and 142 other Italian cities and towns Sunday.

In the capital, the municipal electoral office reported only 56 per cent of the 932,066 registered voters went to the polls, while the figure for Turin was 55 per cent, for Palermo 33 and for Naples only 28.

Of the six big cities choosing municipal assemblies, only Florence and Genoa turned out the bulk of the electorate—73 and 70 per cent, respectively.

Morning papers generally echoed prophecies yesterday that the light vote would put the left wing Communist-Socialist-Action party bloc in first place, with Premier, Alcide De Gasperi's Christian Democrats second.

New York Driver Arrested Sunday After R-28 Crash

James Dolce Charged With Recklessness; Burns Truck in Mishap

James Dolce, 34, of 214 West 15th street, New York city, was arrested on a charge of reckless driving following an automobile accident on Route 28 near the Avalon Inn about 12:35 a. m. Sunday.

Arraigned before Justice of the Peace Percy Bush of the Town of Ulster, Dolce waived examination and was held under $25 bail for hearing at a later date.

Dolce's arrest was the outgrowth of his 1937 Buick sedan and a 1942 Ford panel truck operated by Vincent P. Burns, 31, a driver for the Colonial Cleaners of Kingston.

According to the sheriff's report, the accident occurred on straight stretch of road at the junction of Route 28 and the Stony Hollow Road near the Avalon Inn. The Burns truck was proceeding down the Stony Hollow road and was crossing Route 28, turning in front of the Dolce vehicle. When Burns stopped in the middle of the highway, the Dolce machine rammed into the left side of the truck.

The accident was investigated for the sheriff's office by Deputies Harry Keator and Joseph Haver.

Two New Buses Received for City

Each Vehicle Will Carry 32 Passengers

Two new Yellow Coach buses were received at the garage of the Kingston City Transportation Corporation, it was announced today at the bus office.

Painted in the usual yellow, cream, and red of the local company, the new equipment is numbered 29 and 30, and have a carrying capacity of 32 passengers seated.

The buses are of the latest modern design and are manufactured by the General Motors Corporation.

Following the usual servicing and inspection, the two buses will be placed in service on the local lines, bringing a total of six new buses that have been placed in operation by the Kingston City Transportation since the first of this year.

Claim 40 Per Cent Voters Registered Did Not Vote

Out of 71,861 registered voters in Orange county 24,700 failed to cast valid ballots at last Tuesday's election, according to the Newburgh News.

In Newburgh the showing was better, 90.6 per cent of the registered voters casting their ballot for governor, while the percentage for the county was but 60.5.

Political leaders are quoted as giving two main reasons for failure of nearly 40 per cent of the county registrants to vote—non-personal registration in the rural districts and the fact that many voters spoil their ballots. In many cases, it is stated, voters push down the levers for individual offices, then push them back again.

Dr. Sizoo Will Leave St. Nicholas Ministry

The Rev. Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo formally announced his withdrawal from the ministry of the Collegiate Church of St. Nicholas, New York city, at the morning service Sunday. A few minutes later the elders and deacons called on the congregation to follow them out of the Collegiate Church organization.

The actions came as a climax to the long fight on the part of Dr. Sizoo and the worshippers at St. Nicholas to persuade the consistency of the Collegiate Church corporation to take the St. Nicholas property at Fifth Avenue and Forty-eighth street off the real estate market.

Prefab House 1850 Vintage Still Stands

(AP Newsfeatures)

Hamilton, Mo. — Prefabricated houses are nothing new in Hamilton. This town of 1,600 population had them "way back in the 1850's."

One of the houses, fastened together with wooden pegs, is still in use.

There were no carpenters in Hamilton, so A. G. Davis, town founder, made a deal with a St. Louis lumber company.

He sent plans for a two-story house to the firm, and received the lumber and windows and doors with holes already bored for wooden pegs (there were no nails available). Complete instructions for assembling the house were furnished.

A few years later Otis Richardson, the new postmaster, sent a similar order to St. Louis and got a house which served both as a home and postoffice for years.

This building, one of the oldest in town, is still in good shape. It has been remodeled and has a stove in the little center room which was the postoffice. It is passed to other rooms through wall openings originally used for distribution of mail to patrons.

During the Civil War the house was a center of Union activities, and sandwiches were dispensed through the front windows to marching lines of Union soldiers.

Local Death Record

Matthew H. McGee, 75, a civil engineer, died at Deer Park, Maryland, on November 6 after an illness of nearly a year. Mr. McGee was a former resident of Kingston, and for many years was employed as a supervisor for The Ulster & Delaware Railroad Co. Mr. McGee for the past 17 years had resided in Coconut Grove, Miami, Florida. Surviving are two sisters, Miss Sadie McGee of Homer City, Pa., and Mrs. Eleanor Murphy.

Funeral services for Alonzo Shipman of 18 Belvedere street were held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Jensen & Deegan Funeral Home, 15 Downs street. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends and the floral tributes were many. The Rev. William J. McVey, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church was in charge. Burial took place in Montrose cemetery, with the four grandsons acting as bearers. They were Edwin and Earle Van Gieson, Robert Shipman, Jr., and Monty Williams.

Mrs. Katie Acker, widow of James A. Acker of East Kingston, died Sunday at the Kingston Hospital following a short illness. Mrs. Acker was born in Kingston the daughter of the late Jacob F. and Regina Meyer and for several years had made her home in East Kingston where she was highly esteemed. She was a member of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer. Her husband established the bus line from Kingston to East Kingston and since his death, Mrs. Acker had continued operating the line. Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. George Roche of Brooklyn; four sons, John, Harold, and Edward of East Kingston, and Kenneth of Brookline, two sisters, Mrs. Marie Dimmick of Brooklyn and Miss Louise Meyer of Kingston; three brothers, John Myer of Massapequa, L. I., Charles Meyer of Schenectady and Leonard Meyer of Ordell, N. J. The funeral will be held from the late home in East Kingston Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will be in the family plot in Montrose cemetery.

John J. Costello, a well known resident of this city, died Saturday afternoon at his home, 71 Ann street. He had not been in the best of health for some time, but was able to be around Saturday as usual. He died at his home of a heart attack and died. For many years he was active in the Democratic political party and for eight years was city marshal and later was with the city engineer corps. Fraternally he was a member of St. Mary's Holy Name Society, Kingston Council K. of C., the 4th Degree Assembly and Cornell Hose Company. Surviving him is his wife, Mabel Barnhart Costello, two sisters, Mary E. Costello and Mrs.

DIED

Catholic Scouts Observe Armistice By Attending Mass

Approximately 150 Boy Scouts of Catholic faith in Ulster county observed Armistice Day by recitation of Communion and attending Mass at St. Peter's Church, this city. The church services were at 9 o'clock. Scouts were present from New Paltz, Ellenville, Rosendale, Saugerties and Kingston.

The Mass was offered by the Rev. Joseph A. Geis, pastor of St. Peter's, and the sermon was delivered by the Rev. John Brennan of St. Peter's Church. Responses to the Mass were sung by the Boy Scout Chorus from Troop 14.

Moves Plant to Former Clara Norton Reed House

Warren F. Smith has moved his mail advertising business from the Bernstein building to the former Clara Norton Reed house, corner of Crown and John streets, which he recently purchased. It will occupy the first floor, excepting the large room at the southern end, which has been leased by the Ulster County Girl Scouts organization. Mr. Smith and his family are making their home in the smaller house which is attached to, but separate from the main house. Later the upper floor of the large house will be given over to offices.

This is one of the old Colonial stone houses for which Kingston has long been noted.

BRIGHT LIGHTS

The city yawns when morning dawns
And streaks of soil are on its face . . .
A mousy gray announces day
As life resumes its tireless pace.

A city shows its working clothes
When sunbeams raze across the town
Exposing age at every stage
Until the searching sun goes down.
Then twilight falls on dusty walls
The streets are dressed in party wear
As gay designs in neon signs
Invite the eye to linger there.

This facial lift is quite a gift
Restoring youth at every turn
And night descends on city friends
Who boast of midnight oil to burn.
Romantic hours are like the flowers
Arranged to shield a husky town . . .
A city's lights make wondrous signs
That last . . . until the break of morn.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 11 Armistice Day

Now, in the days of our second modern era of peace, may those deprived of renewed associations take comfort in knowing that personalities cannot be separated from the life of a community of which they were, and will forever be a part. The influence of the lives of heroes never terminates.

Shortly before he died at sea, Nile Kinnick, an all-American football star of Iowa University, wrote to a friend:

"Let us hope that you and I and many, many others like us, will be enabled some day, somewhere, somehow, to contribute in some small way to the peace and progress of this world. There is nothing wrong with dreams provided foundations are put under them. Thanks up!"

Thus, he referred to the American principles of individual freedom and equality of action. By "building foundations under dreams" our forebears fashioned this magnificent new world in the amazingly short time of 170 years (1776-1946).

May Americans always understand that our vast national wealth is worthless without the self-maintenance of our rights as individuals to keep on building foundations under dreams.

Slight Delay
San Francisco, Nov. 11 (AP)—The 94-year-old woman, smiling sweetly at jewelry salesman Frank McAuliffe:
"I'd like to pick up that silver boat I left here to be cleaned. My sister said she'd get it with me if I didn't get it pretty soon."
Said McAuliffe: "When did you leave it?" Several weeks ago?
"No—in 1902."
McAuliffe found it, too—in the basement—

Versatile
Bridge, Ore., Nov. 11 (AP)—The teacher shortage here put Powell Lancaster, chairman of the school board, at work teaching the third, fourth and fifth grades.
Anxious to get back to his regular job of farming and logging, Lancaster also became an advertising man in his appeal for teacher help.
"The wage is good," he said plaintively, "and housing is available, too."

Won in a Walk
Decatur, Ill., Nov. 11 (AP)—Democrat Paul Ferguson, still nursing weary feet, won election to the Illinois Legislature with 28,668 votes and attributes his success to 22,093 personal calls—all made on foot.
A political novice and comparative newcomer to Decatur, Ferguson says his box score showed 44,186 minutes consumed in ringing doorbells, or about 30 full 24-hour days, and that 4,881 people weren't home or wouldn't open the door.
In winning one of three district house offices, he unseated the Democratic incumbent by a margin of 416 votes.

The Elgin Victory and the General Sturgis, with a combined total of 3,865 troops, arrived in New York from Bremerhaven yesterday.

Proof of Cooperation
Berlin, Nov. 11 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Frank A. Heating, assistant deputy military governor for Germany, told American occupation personnel here in an Armistice address today that the four power administration of Germany was proof "that great nations can cooperate." He urged an effort to achieve "better cooperation and understanding among all nations" to secure world peace.

Tiny Dust-Like Particles in Ocean Beat Scientists

By RENNIE TAYLOR
(Associated Press Science Writer)
Berkeley, Calif., Nov. 11 (AP)—Scientists in a pre-Pearl Harbor experiment tried to use powerful light beams and flares as potential anti-submarine weapons but were thwarted by tiny dust-like particles which they found in ocean water.
This was disclosed today by Dr. F. A. Jenkins, University of California physicist, who with Dr. I. S. Bowen, now director of the Mt. Wilson observatory, performed the tests in 1941 at the navy electronics laboratory in San Diego.
The tiny particles scattered the light so that powerful beams spread out instead of retaining their dagger-like shape. Increasing the power of the beam helped little because the greater the intensity the greater the dispersion.
However, Dr. Jenkins reported, observers were able to see objects

Rent Formula Planned To Increase Ceiling

Baltimore, Nov. 11 (AP)—George M. Englar, president of the National Apartment Owners' Association, says a new rent formula designed to provide an "upward adjustment of ceilings promptly" will be laid before the association convention in Oklahoma City, Okla., next week.
He said the formula was based on increased upkeep, material and labor costs and if approved would be presented to proper government officials.

Englar, who admitted that "thousands" of units throughout the nation were being withheld from rentals by disgruntled owners, said the formula provided for:
A 15 per cent increase in rents as soon as possible.
Decontrol of those properties where the landlords offer the tenants a lease, at the increase level, until April, 1948.

Queen Elizabeth Arrives With Notables Aboard

New York, Nov. 11 (AP)—The Giant British luxury liner Queen Elizabeth arrived here this morning with 2,287 passengers from Southampton including the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, a sprinkling of Hollywood notables and British nobility.

The Cunard liner completed her second westward peacetime crossing of the Atlantic in seven days.

The Windsors will hold a news conference aboard the ship later in the day.
Other passengers included Hugh Baile, president of the United Press Associations and Mrs. Baile; film actress Marie Montez; movie producer Walter Wanger and his actress wife, Joan Bennett; Sir Alexander Korda, British producer, and Mrs. Leland Harrison, wife of the American Ambassador to Switzerland.

Opening Date Announced

Arrangements for the official opening of DeWitt Lake Park have been made for May 31, 1947. Directors of each camp are arranging to take an active part in the program. These include the Rev. O. Roy Green, director of St. George Boys' Choir which has camped at the lake for 16 years; directors of Camp Greenkill, New York, and the Y.M.C.A. Day Camp of Kingston, of which Lou Schaffer is director, and also chairman of the camp committees for the season. Ortone's 20-piece band will give a concert during the afternoon. During the winter new floats are being built and repairs are being made. There is much activity being planned for the coming summer.

under water as much as 580 feet away. The scientists said this was a record distance for such a performance but not to be effective in under-sea warfare.

Dr. Jenkins and Dr. Bowen found clear sea water to contain enormous numbers of these particles, about 1,500,000 per cubic inch. Each speck was calculated to be about one fiftythousandth of an inch in diameter. The particles also provided a new explanation for the indigo color of deep ocean water. Dr. Jenkins said. Water itself absorbs the red and yellow colors in light. The particles reflect the green, blue and violet rays, the combination of which is indigo. In the experiments the scientists had sought to use light in several ways. Among these was an attempt to set up a horizontal sheet of light to trip a depth charge on a passing submarine; a test with 2,000,000 candlepower flares to silhouette the target; a method of using pulsating light beams in radar-like fashion, shooting them against a submarine's hull and re-recording the light reflected back from it, and finally a means of illumination for long-range underwater photography.

STAY OF ARMS

It is just as well that the day which celebrates the end of World War I was called "Armistice Day." It was not the end of war, but merely a stay of arms.

What will V-E Day and V-J Day mean to the young people who will be middle-aged 28 years from now? Will this apparent peace be merely another intermission in the great game of war? Or can it be a real peace? For "Peace," as one wise man puts it, "is not the absence of war. Peace is the Presence of Justice."

Fairness, as among friends, is needed now, not suspicion, as among enemies. Justice, which gives to every man according to his deserts, is required.

Nothing less than friendly fairness, nothing less than justice, will avail the nations now. Will they work constantly toward those ends? Will they persist in laying the firm foundations of the structure of peace?

If they will, life can move on toward greater glory and fulfillment.

LOWER TAXES IN NEWBURGH

Newburgh's municipal tax budget for 1947 adopted by the city council shows a 50-point decrease in that city's tax rate, which undoubtedly is welcome news to the property owners of Newburgh. It would be a real Christmas present to Kingston's property owners if similar action could be taken by the city administration.

The total to be raised by taxes in Newburgh is $765,517 with a rate of $19.50 per thousand assessed valuation. The Newburgh News commenting editorially on the decrease says: "This is a decrease of 50 points from the past year, and is noteworthy, in view of the raise in salaries granted officials and employees and the increased cost of materials and services. The tendency in cities generally is toward higher tax rate."

"By effecting this reduction, the Warden-Fogarty administration has continued its record of a decrease every year in this decade. But for higher school levies, the longtime goal of an overall stabilized rate of $35 would be practically within reach."

In Kingston the various city departments are required to file their estimates of amounts needed to operate each year with the mayor who either cuts or increases the appropriations asked. The budget is then submitted to the public at a public hearing before the first of the year.

Just what Kingston's tax rate for 1947 will be, of course will not be known until the tentative budget is drafted by the mayor.

The tentative budget can either be adopted or rejected by the Common Council when it meets to consider it in January.

This year's budget was adopted over the protests of the Republican members of the Common Council on the ground that it exceeded the two per cent tax limitation.

The contention of the Republican aldermen was upheld by the court in a taxpayer's suit to bring the budget within the tax limitation.

CHAMPION'S JOB

"Don't the English ever get a new idea?" asked an exasperated G.I. They do indeed, and many of the war's most deadly weapons were due to British ingenuity. But they also like to hold on to old ideas and old customs.

One such custom which has been going on for centuries came to light the other day with the announcement that Lieut. J. L. M. Dymoke, a 20-year-old veteran of the Singapore campaign, had just succeeded his father as Hereditary King of the Chambo. His duties ought not to take much of his time. They consist simply in appearing in full armor at the royal coronation and offering to fight anyone who questions the king's right to be crowned. The custom goes back at least to King Richard II in 1377. For some time it has dropped out of use, being last used when William IV was crowned in 1834.

'These Days'

STRICTLY PERSONALITY

Thomas E. Dewey, John W. Bricker, Earl Warren have emerged as chosen national leaders of the Republican party. The size of the vote each of these garnered in his own state is of such dimensions as to make each of them a Presidential possibility. Robert A. Taft is a member of this galaxy of leaders by his intellectual capacity and his position in the Senate. He is a publicly accepted leader. Senator Vandenberg also belongs to this group because of his pre-eminence in foreign affairs and the position he has made for himself at international conferences. These five are recognized by the people as having a right to party leadership and no one can take that from them.

This then is the lineup of leadership not in order of importance but in order of Presidential potentialities: Dewey, Bricker, Taft, Vandenberg, and Warren. Harold Stassen is a candidate for the nomination because he desires it and is conducting a well-financed, efficiently operated campaign for it. But neither this election nor service either to the party or to the country give him the public and party pre-eminence the others enjoy. Yet it would be fatuous to ignore him or to reject the strength he may possess.

Others who were elected this year, like Edward Martin of Pennsylvania and Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, will develop interest. Martin defeated Senator Guffey by 600,000, which is about what Dewey took to defeat Mead. Lodge is a colorful individual of extraordinary lineage and an excellent career in war and peace for political preference. But men of this second group are not today primary factors in Republican leadership. Their positions are dependent upon what those others do to eliminate themselves. In a word, there is a primary lineup and a secondary lineup.

And then there are the generals that so intrigued the playful commentators on NBC on election night that they gave only initials like E. and M. In spite of their elephantine humor, even these radio artists must have known that they were referring principally to General Eisenhower, of whom men speak as though he were a Republican and as though a campaign were in the making. But it is likely to come to naught.

The importance of these men is that they can, if they are so minded, wreck the Republican party, during the next two years should they devote themselves to eliminating each other. If each of them protrudes himself by exhibitionism, by maneuvers of the Henry Wallace type which means winning a group here and a group there, the Republican party will be split into factions and will lose that cohesiveness which is essential to establishing a program of reconstruction so acceptable that it will bring them victory in 1948. Nothing could be more risky than for some ambitious politician to pick a sloganized issue and, portraying himself as a liberal, break up party solidarity which must exist if the people are not to become distressed and disgusted. The American people expect of these Republicans a constructive program of rehabilitation, not a circus of personalities.

The time to consider this danger is now when it is not yet important. If Dewey, Bricker, Taft, Vandenberg and Warren determine that normal competition for office and wholesome personal ambitions are to be kept within the margins of the welfare of the country and the interests of the party, they can establish a strength which no one can undermine. Fortunately for the Republicans, they do not have an amalgam of conflicting groups such as Mr. Roosevelt bequeathed to the Democrats. There is no Republican P.A.C., and even more, the Republicans are in no manner beholden to extremist groups either on the Right or on the Left. The business men failed to support them in this campaign in any adequate manner; the Leftists opposed them. It is a good position.

On the whole, the only unorthodox element in the party were the Willie-Kites and most of them are now in some P.A.C. segment. Their absence from the Republican party makes for strength because most of them were at least new dealers who, for one reason or another, imagined that they could move faster in the Republican party. ## THAT BODY OF YOURS

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)

STIFF JOINTS

One of the first things a medical student learns is that where there is inflammation of any part of the body, that part should be given rest—heart, stomach, lung, joint. We have been realizing only recently that there is such a thing as too much rest in certain ailments of the body and our research workers in arthritis state that many patients with arthritis allow the joint to rest for weeks after all the inflammation—pain, redness and swelling—has disappeared. If too much rest is given the joint after the inflammation has disappeared, then stiffness of the joint may follow. When this stiffness occurs it means that the tissues about the joint—ligaments and cartilage—have more or less "stuck together" preventing movement of the joint. To break down these adhesions, as they are called, it may be necessary to put the patient under an anesthetic and "loosen up" the joint, after this "operation" an attendant can apply heat in some form and gently move the joint in various ways to keep it loosened up. To try to loosen up stiff joints even with heat and massage may at first be very painful.

The reason that heat and massage are used to such a great extent in old stiff rheumatic joints is that the products of wastes, which the inflammation made and left in the joint, must be removed if the joint is to get back its full motion. By first heating the joint, by any method, the heat acts like a softener, and, in addition these products become softer and when the joint is moved or manipulated these waste products, being in a more liquid form, are more readily carried away in the circulation.

Massage has been described as a light form of exercise as it squeezes or presses on the muscles causing light or mild activity which means that the blood supplying the muscles' fibers takes in more oxygen and gives out more carbon dioxide, just as does exercise.

Chronic Rheumatism and Arthritis

Sufferers with chronic rheumatism and arthritis will find many helpful suggestions as to diet, heat, massage, and other aids in Dr. Barton's booklet, entitled "Chronic Rheumatism and Arthritis." To obtain it just send Ten Cents and a three cent stamp, to cover cost of handling and mailing, to The Bell Library, in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, Post Office Box 69, Station G, New York 19, N. Y., and ask for your copy.

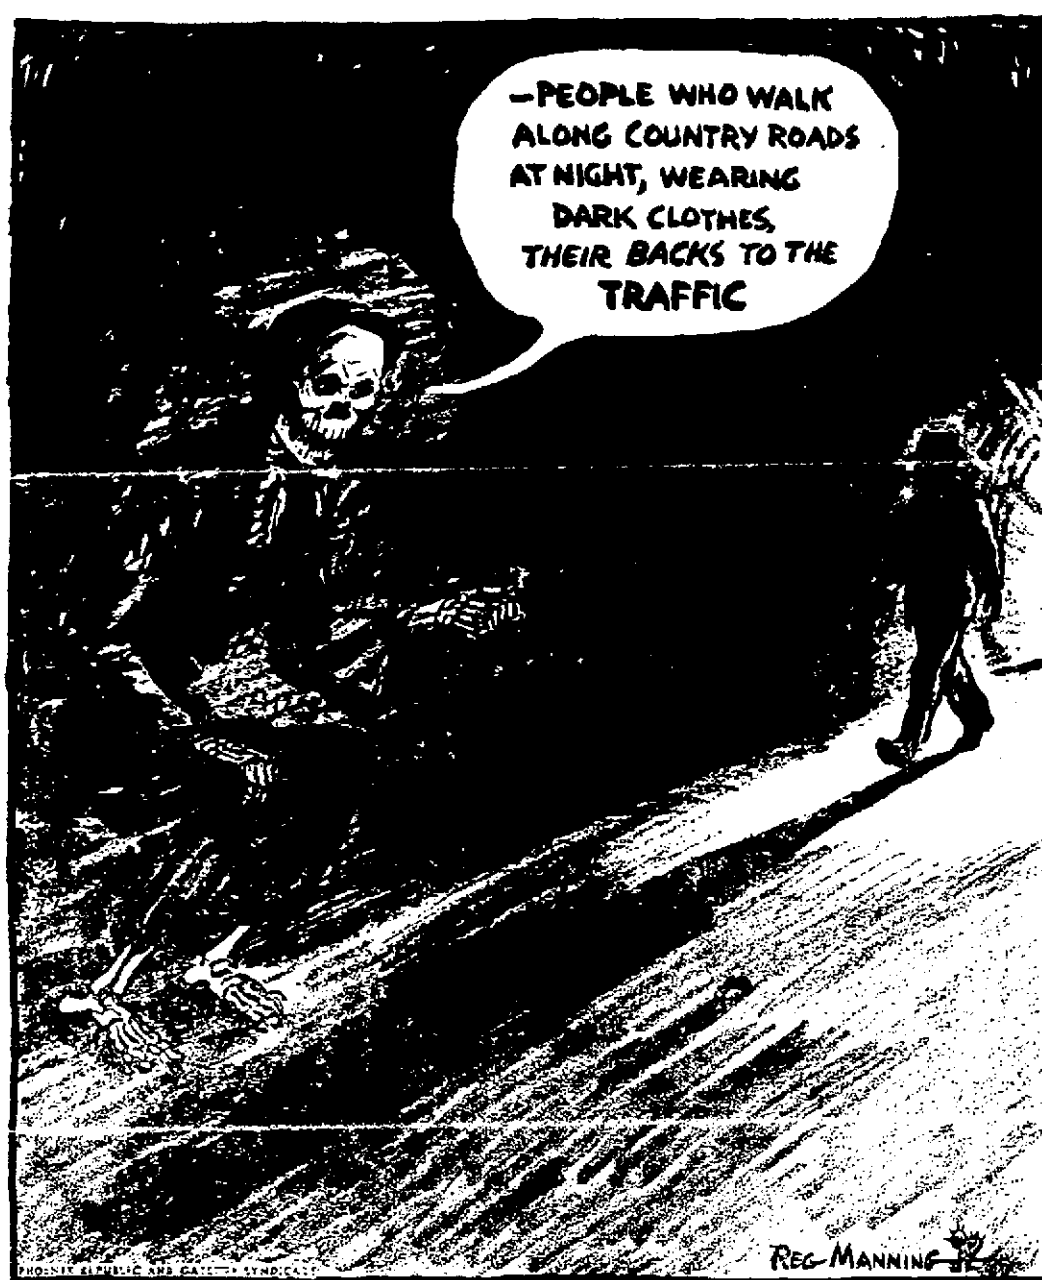

Yet the office still continues, as Dymoke's appointment indicates.

No pay goes with this job, except that a gold cup is presented to the champion. In the United States there are various offices quite as useless. Some are salaried.

Who is getting the profits from the new higher prices?

Community chest leaders are justifiably chasty about their success.

They're Always Flirting With Me

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

By HAL BOYLE

New York, Nov. 11 (AP)—He was one of the "400," not the old "400" of New York society, but of a new, tougher "400" made up of America's battle elite—the men who lived through more than 400 days of frontline fighting.

He was big and broad-shouldered and young, but his stomach muscles were going flabby. For six months he said the only exercise he had taken was elbow bending. "I spent it mostly in places like this," he said, flicking his thumb at the small crowded bar, a cozy spot where tired businessmen take a couple of quick ones on the way home and slouch and slouch and drop in for an early start on the long evening.

The whiskey had put a quiver in his hand and deep circles under his watery eyes. In the unreal twilight of the bar the face seemed lit by the morose shadow only dimly. "I'm a little foggy in the head," he said. Some of the fog came from the battlefields and the barrooms had deepened it. Now he lives in that mental "lost world" into which many a veteran has retreated—men who spent so much courage in war they have none left to face the quieter personal battles of peace.

Three years ago today he was in North Africa, glad because the French had just signed an armistice with the Allies. That gave him a break after three days' fighting. "I thought I was a real veteran," he said fondly. "If I had known what was ahead—"

Then came winter fighting in Tunisia, and summer fighting in Sicily, more training in England and then long summer and longer winter fighting from Normandy to Germany. Friends left lying on dusty roads, friends dying in rainy gullies and snow-covered fields—but for him the "million dollar wound," the wound that cripples but sends you home, came only at the very end.

"I got so tired I just walked around standing up hoping I'd get it," he said. "You know what I call guys who just got it in Normandy? Newcomers! The green ones used to come and ask how long I'd been with the outfit. They felt better when I said, 'All the way.' They felt if one guy had made it they might, too."

A blonde came in and said "Hello" to him, but when he started toward her she eased quickly past him to the end of the bar. "I got hit three times," he said, looking after her moodily. "Once a rifle and a couple times mortars. The last one finished me. I spent two months in a hospital blind. Finally I got one eye back. I got mixed up in the hospital. My memory's all mixed up."

"When I came back to my home town, nobody gave a damn about me. Just another guy that wore a uniform. And I kept running into jerks my age that never even went overseas."

"I came here then. I've tried several things, but I can't stick at them. Silly people giving you silly things to do. And I get mad when I see all the people living fat and easy around me and think about all the nights I spent in foxholes. But he likes the barrooms, because there is a kind of rising excitement in the clinking glasses and girls laughing and people talking loud and friendly. A government pension enables him to spend more evenings at the bar than he should.

"I oughtn't to be here," he said. "I ought to be doing something, but I don't know what I want to do. There's something wrong with me. I know I'm the one that's out of step."

He set his drink down and said: "But you know there's one thing I ain't sorry for. I'm damn glad I carried a rifle, and I carried it all the way."

Welland Invites U.N.

Welland, Ont., Nov. 11 (AP)—With the question of a permanent home for the United Nations again under consideration, Welland has renewed its bid to have Navy Island in the Niagara river midway between Canada and the United States, designated as the site. The Canadian section of the Navy Island committee set up to put Navy Island's attractions before the committee, announced it had received from L. B. Pearson, Canadian undersecretary of state, the following reply to a message it sent Prime Minister Mackenzie King: "The prime minister has asked me to take up with our delegation in the United Nations site. The delegation will be asked to give consideration to Navy Island if the question of an alternative site to the New York district is re-opened."

Escort for Dewey

Fattest Pay Checks

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 11 (AP)—New York state construction workers took home their fattest weekly day checks in history during September. A state department of labor report today showed earnings averaged $67.5 for a work week of 37.4 hours. The previous high was in June, 1945, when workers averaged $60.0 for a 40.2 hour work week. Employment rose 73 per cent and total payrolls 86 per cent over September of last year.

"A Century's Turn"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

A memorable meeting of Will-wyck Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, was held February 12, 1906, in the home of Mrs. Richard Tappen on Albany avenue, when Judge A. T. Clearwater presented a certificate of incorporation of the chapter, which was signed by the nine incorporators, and acknowledged before Attorney DeWitt Roosa as notary public.

The nine signers were Mary S. Roosa, Lizzie R. Lawton, Helen M. Soop, Elizabeth A. Wynkoop, Mary Isabella Forsyth, Anna F. Elting, Phoebe D. Roosa and Julia M. Hasbrouck.

During the afternoon tea was poured by Mrs. Harriet Van Deusen, Mrs. Mabel Hamilton and Miss Ella Van Deusen.

At the meeting of the chapter on March 1, 1906, at the home of Mary Isabella Forsyth, it was voted to purchase the old stone Tappan house at Crown and Green streets, and to use the building as the chapter headquarters. The chapter still maintains its headquarters in this historic old building.

The 40th annual reunion of the gallant old 120th Regiment of Civil War fame, was held on February 22, 1906, with the annual banquet at the old Eagle Hotel on Main street.

Captain Jacob L. Snyder was elected president. The other officers elected were: Major Albert Carr, secretary, and Major James H. Everett, treasurer.

The members of the executive committee were Griffin A. Hart, Charles Dumond, John Broadhead, F. P. Rowe and Wesley D. Hale. The principal speakers at the banquet were the Rev. Dr. R. C. Dadds, the new pastor of the First Presbyterian Church on Elmendorf street, and Principal Myron T. Scudder of the New Paltz Normal School.

Lafayette Oughlertree died on February 28, 1906, in the home of his son, Deputy Postmaster Edgar E. Oughlertree, on Van Buren street, in his 82nd year.

He came to Kingston in 1846 and followed his trade as carpenter and builder.

Mr. Oughlertree built the first two concrete houses in Kingston. He also erected a number of fine homes in the city, including the homes of Senator John N. Cordis, Seth Staples, and Edward Carpenter.

Senator Cordis and Mr. Staples for years were among the leading citizens of Ponce de Leon. The senator for years was active in the business and political life of the city, while Mr. Staples was engaged in the brick manufacturing business.

The Old Homestead Club, a well known organization in the early 1900's held its annual banquet on March 1, 1906, in the old Mansion House on lower Broadway.

John Tonsky was toastmaster that night, and among the speakers were Recorder Harry Groves, former City Treasurer David Weil, Commissioner Henry L. Wachmeyer of the Board of Health, and Gus C. Randall.

The Kingston Grammar School Athletic Association was organized at a meeting held at the Y.M.C.A. on March 14, 1906. The association was organized to promote school spirit in the elementary schools of the city.

Harry Hamburger was elected president, and the other officers were: William Satterlee, vice president; William McCausland, treasurer, and Joseph Cahill, secretary.

Principal Frank L. Meagher of School No. 5 presided at the meeting.

Julian Nowak, 31, noted bacteriologist and premier of Poland in 1923-23.

Neither 'Stalemate' Nor 'Deadlock' May Be Expected to Materialize as Result of Elections

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Nov. 11.—The talk of "stalemate" and "deadlock" in government as a result of last week's congressional election is perhaps natural, but it may be safely predicted that such a contingency will never materialize on any really important issues.

The executive and legislative branches of the government of the United States are more likely to cooperate and work together in the next two years than in any similar period in American history.

There is an inclination to draw parallels with other instances in which the Congress was dominated by one political party and the White House by the other. Differences there were vetoes by the President, some of which were sustained and some overridden; but the words "deadlock" and "stalemate" are gross exaggeration.

Actually there is more unanimity in Congress today than there has been in the history of the present generation. For out of the 167 Democrats elected to the House of Representatives, 100 come from the south. This means that on issues that are vital and important to the nation, the Republicans with their 248 seats can pick up 42 or more votes from the Democratic side to get the necessary two-thirds to override a presidential veto, and enough votes on some occasions to offset any defections in Republican ranks.

In the Senate a Democratic-Republican coalition can likewise furnish the two-thirds vote to override a veto when the issue is clearly drawn and the people's wishes are rightly interpreted by the Congressional majority.

It works both ways. If the President is right in his veto and the Republican majority is merely playing politics or trying to put the opponents in a hole on a piece of legislation which the country would not approve, the Democratic votes will not be forthcoming to override a veto.

On conservative and radical issues, however, the Congress will be able easily to muster more than a two-thirds vote. For the southern Democrats, though formally expressing disappointment over the outcome of last week's election in the north, are privately rejoicing. They knew that the C.I.O.-P.A.C. if successful in its organizing drive in the south, would undoubtedly sweep many of the present Democratic members of Congress.

The 1946 election was crucial.

WILL WE DISARM AGAIN?

Are we really going to disarm again? Are our representatives in the United Nations assembly serious in putting on the agenda for early consideration Russia's plan for reducing armaments and outlawing and destroying certain new weapons; and will that plan again lead us to the point of sinking battleships which we built in urgent haste and at such a cost as we could ill afford?

Or are the gentlemen in the assembly only making a show to hide the power struggle in which each of several nations is grappling desperately for an advantage over the others?

The fact that the plan is of Soviet origin need not make us more suspicious than if it were our own. Russia would accept only such portions of any plan as suited her—and I hope we will be as realistic. The important consideration is that we cannot rely on any agreement with the people who have glorified deception as a technique in their avowed program of world conquest.

I often feel that our top political representatives, including the president, have never taken the time to understand Communism; that they do not know as much about its vicious and unmitigated schemes as the lowest-paid investigator in the F.B.I. or any of several million Americans in labor unions and Hollywood's motion picture industry and New York's ward politics. The gullible officials are used by others who do understand the Communist ideology very well indeed, and who cherish it.

I wish Harry Truman and all his appointees what kind of destruction our defenses would read Stalin's own statement of ethics as reprinted in "The Real Soviet Russia."

All in Russia's Favor

"Words have no relation to actions—otherwise what kind of diplomacy is it? Words are one thing, actions another. Good words are a mask for concealment of bad deeds. Sincere diplomacy is no more possible than dry water or wooden iron." Stalin has been consistent; he has backed up those words by his actions over a period of years, breaking every pact and agreement as soon as it ceased to serve his ends.

If we are so foolish as to sign a disarmament agreement with the Soviets, we will of course agree not to use the atomic bomb and certain other advanced methods of killing, which our scientists have discovered at great cost. We will reduce fighting to where it was in 1940—which will instantly give Russia, with its huge standing army and its reserve of 17,000,000, a vast advantage over the rest of us.

But this advantage will be played down by the diplomats because Stalin will assure us again that he has only 60 divisions, instead of the 500 Dr. Braun reports, and because people so earnestly cherish peace all the nations of the world will proclaim peace and their citizens will turn out in parade and cheer themselves hoarse and celebrate all night.

And wake up next morning to learn that—as a Los Angeles publisher wisely predicts—the Red army has moved into Turkey and stands astride the Dardanelles. From there it will push on to the Suez and to the oil fields of the Middle East, trenching itself in a strategic position coveted by every conquest-crazed dictator in history.

Invent More Weapons

I have always held the belief that such expanding empires break up of their own bigness. One who in parade and cheer themselves hoarse and celebrate all night.

And wake up next morning to learn that—as a Los Angeles publisher wisely predicts—the Red army has moved into Turkey and stands astride the Dardanelles. From there it will push on to the Suez and to the oil fields of the Middle East, trenching itself in a strategic position coveted by every conquest-crazed dictator in history.

With internationalists in charge of our destiny we would hardly be able to keep out of the war sure to follow Russian expansion into the Middle East.

These internationalists and our impractical statesmen and our Russia-firsters insist there are no atomic secrets—and anyway, that Russia will soon have them! A backwoodsman from deep in Oregon's forests has more sense than the lot of them. He writes: "How can we strengthen ourselves by giving our substance to our enemies and destroying our defenses? That will not reform them, neither will it make them love us."

Blind, utopian talk on the part of men who hold our future in their hands is filling the people with distrust, and stirring among the least we move and stir a fear expressed by Macaulay a century ago—that at some time in a crisis we through unwisely chosen representatives, would commit some act which would permanently close the door on our future freedom.

I think a storm of protests from the people is overdue on the subject of disarmament. We must clean out our spies so there will be no military secrets. We must keep our inventing. We must keep our noses strong, then keep our noses out of other people's affairs. By a Washingtonian's course we need have no fear of the future.

ARMISTICE DAY'S GLORY IS UNDIMMED BY GREATER VICTORY CELEBRATIONS

By ALEXANDER E. GEORGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer
Washington, Nov. 9.—The nation on Monday will observe the 28th anniversary of the end of a war which is now overshadowed by World War II.

In the minds of many Americans, World War I Armistice Day is dwarfed by the more vivid recollections, heavier casualties and greater significance of the recent conflict. Some are wondering whether Armistice Day will be shoved into the background by V-E and V-J days.

Leaders of veterans' organizations don't think so. They believe that November 11 has become so strongly established as a nationwide day of commemoration that it will continue indefinitely to be an important date on the American calendar.

Added Importance Seen
Louis E. Starr, commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, says that "because of the efforts of the nation to win a lasting peace, Armistice Day has taken on an added importance."

Col. John Thomas Taylor, legislative director of the American Legion, says: "Succeeding years have solidified the historical significance of November 11, 1918. Abolition of Armistice Day ceremonies within the next 10, 20 or 30 years is inconceivable."

Col. Taylor points out that "with less than one century of veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic still living, Memorial Day, 1946, attracted greater interest and reverence than ever before from the American people."

"There are more than 3 1/2 million World War I veterans," he said. "These veterans, their families and a multitude of their countrymen, through participation in Armistice Day for 28 years, have made November 11 a great and sacred date."

400,000 Disabled Cited
Starr says: "This Armistice Day we owe a bow to the 400,000 disabled veterans of World War I. To them and to all who won the victory in 1918, we say that this day remains alive in the hearts of real Americans."

Some 3,776,000 of the 4,764,000 men who served in World War I are living. Their average age is 53. Statisticians of the Veterans Administration estimate that 25 years hence — in 1971 — about 1,257,000 of these veterans still will be living. To them and their families, November 11 will be a memorable date.

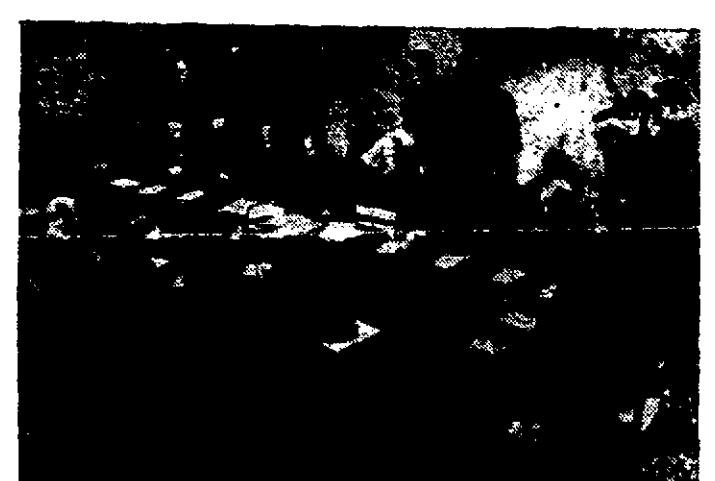

Armistice Day is a legal holiday in all of the states and the District of Columbia and in the territories and possessions. V-E and V-J days have not yet been widely established as holidays. Moreover, there is some difference of opinion as to the exact date to be used as Victory Day for World War II.

The American Legion has urged that August 14, the date of the Japanese surrender terms, be proclaimed as Victory Day for World War II, a counterpart of Armistice Day for World War I. The Veterans of Foreign Wars have advocated setting aside a single Victory Day but have not stipulated the date.

Not Officially Over
To the men who fought in Europe, May 8 (V-E day) was the big day of the recent war although it did not mark the end of global fighting. Some people regard Sept. 1, date of the formal surrender of the Japanese to General MacArthur, as V-J day and the most appropriate single Victory Day for the entire war.

Congress and the President prescribe holidays for the District of Columbia but not for the states. The latter fix their own holidays but usually follow a presidential proclamation. After the war is officially ended, the President may proclaim a single Victory Day or separate V-E and V-J days for annual observance.

The dedication of the Nation's greatest shrine to its soldier dead, the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National cemetery has helped to make Nov. 11 an impressive date on the American calendar. The Unknown Soldier, just 25 years ago tomorrow, millions of Americans have visited the tomb.

An unknown service man—soldier, sailor, Marine or Coast-guardman—of World War II will be laid to rest beside the Unknown Soldier of World War I. Congress passed a bill last June providing for the return of the unknown service man and for ceremonies paying him the highest honors. Details as to how he will be chosen are to be worked out by the war department.

He will be selected from 8,800 unidentified bodies from battle fields around the world. The Unknown Soldier of World War I was selected from among four soldiers who died in the battles of the Aisne-Marne, Meuse-Argonne, Somme and St. Mihiel. The four soldiers were aligned in four caskets in a little hotel at Chalons, France.

Sgt. Edward F. Younger of Chicago was chosen because of his outstanding service to designate which of the four would be brought to Washington for entombment. While a French mili-

Shopping Center Designed to Help Problem of Traffic

New York, Nov. 11 (AP)—A $2,000,000 suburban shopping center now under construction in Stamford, Conn., has been described by its designer, Alfons Bach, as "the answer to the challenge of the auto which has bogged down every city in the United States."

Located one mile from the city's main business section, the shopping center covers three city blocks. It is designed on the basis of two square feet of parking space for each square foot of selling space.

When completed it will house approximately 30 individual stores in a three-unit structure with a two-story center building and single-story wings. "Ridgeway Shopping Center is the first project of its kind on the east coast covering an average city of 75,000 to 100,000 population which is self-contained and a prosperous community," Bach said. "I believe it is adaptable, with variations, to any city which is expanding and growing."

An industrial designer and consultant of retail chain store merchandising, Bach is president of the shopping center which is being financed by Stamford business interests.

Urges Americans Buy Bonds to Protect Future

By JOHN W. SNYDER
Secretary of the Treasury

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11—

The period between two memorable dates in American history, Armistice Day and Pearl Harbor Day, will this year be devoted to a nation-wide publicity campaign by the Treasury Department—a campaign which will urge Americans to continue the regular purchase of United States Savings Bonds; to buy extra bonds whenever possible.

In both the World Wars that these anniversaries mark, the road to victory was shortened by the people's liberal investment in Treasury bonds. But the fighting days were over fifteen months ago. The extra money to cover military expenditures is not needed. On a cash basis, the Federal Budget is better than balanced. A question naturally forms in the mind—why is the Treasury again asking the people to buy extra bonds? The answer comes easily. The fight against inflation has not been won. The Treasury wants income earners to save their surplus dollars, instead of using them to push prices higher on a highly-competitive market. This new campaign is a counter-offensive in the battle against inflation, inaugurated by the Treasury savings bond campaign in the spring of 1941 when the Nation shifted to a war economy, consumer goods became scarce and income payments rose to record highs.

At least $40,000,000,000 of the $46,000,000,000 in savings bonds outstanding are held by individuals; a lot of money in any man's language but it is not enough. Estimates indicate that income payments to individuals will this year soar to the all-time high of $167,000,000,000. At present price levels, consumer goods on which to spend this fabulous income will fall short by $20,000,000,000. The expenditure of any part of the surplus would only spread the germ of inflation.

To encourage the building up of reserves by the average citizen, the Treasury pays a substantial premium on E bond savings. One of the long-range purposes of the current drive is to insure the future financial security of this important segment of the American family, the keystone of the arch that upholds our nation economic structure.

Now consider the purely national aspects of this renewed savings bond campaign. Since the public debt is the obligation of every citizen, its wide distribution among them will create a keen and healthy aspects of this renewed savings investment. A bondholder in America, Incorporated, not only enjoys the interest accruing to his investment—in addition, he becomes an active, helpful partner to those officials responsible for managing wisely the fiscal affairs of his Government. The Treasury's effort to transfer public debt securities to the hands of individuals is meeting with success. The cash balance created by over-subscription of the Victory Loan last December has made possible the paying off of some $19,000,000,000 worth of maturing obligations, most of which were held in the form of short-term securities, by banks.

The cash balance made available for the retirement of maturing debt has been augmented by Savings Bonds sales during the current calendar year which has exceeded redemptions and maturities of these bonds by a billion dollars.

The Treasury's policy on debt management has the wholehearted endorsement of the banks of the Nation, who urge their depositors to buy extra Savings Bonds. They are in full accord with the Treasury belief that we are not just selling securities to the people, but SECURITY for the future.

Jane Elizabeth Lynch, Anthony J. Zell Wed In Eddyville Church

The marriage of Miss Jane Elizabeth Lynch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Lynch, Eddyville, to Anthony J. Zell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Zell, Eddyville, was performed Saturday at 9:30 a. m. in the Sacred Heart Church, Eddyville. The Rev. Joseph J. Gorman officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Miss Mary Burns was organist. Miss Joan Lynch, sister of the bride, sang "Ave Maria" and "The Lord's Prayer" before the ceremony. Miss Patricia Kelle sang "Ave Verum," "Lauds Anglicus," and "O Lord I Am Not Worthy" during the ceremony. The church was decorated with white chrysanthemums and greenery.

The bride was escorted by her father. Her gown was fashioned with satin bodice, sweetheart neckline, long pointed sleeves, and mouseline de soie skirt ending in a train. Her fingertip veil was fastened to a coronet of orange blossoms and seed pearls and she carried a shower bouquet of white chrysanthemums and poms.

Miss Joan Lynch as maid of honor wore a dusty rose taffeta gown with matching headpiece of flowers and veiling and carried bronze chrysanthemums. Bridesmaids were Miss Mary Zell, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Maureen Zell, sister of the bride.

Two high school seniors with matching net headpieces and carried pink poms. Hugh Higgins of New York City acted as best man. Ushers were Robert Leighton, Brooklyn; and Victor Capillupo of New York City.

A wedding breakfast for 40 guests was served at the Stuyvesant Hotel. Immediately following the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Zell left for a wedding trip to Atlantic City. For traveling suits, Zell wore a black and aqua suit trimmed with black velvet collar and cuffs. Her corsage was pink poms.

They will make their home at 920 Sterling place, Brooklyn.

Mrs. Zell is a graduate of New Paltz State Teachers College where she was president of the senior class and a member of Artemis Sorority. She has been principal of the Eddyville school. Mr. Zell, a graduate of Cooper Union College, served three years in the Merchant Marines and is now employed as mechanical engineer for Babcock and Wilcox Co.

Doyle-Kellerman Nuptials Performed Sunday Afternoon

The Immaculate Conception Church was the setting Sunday afternoon for the wedding of Miss Evelyn A. Melania Kellerman, daughter of Mrs. Patrick J. Jordan, 316 Hasbrouck avenue, to William D. Doyle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Doyle, Port Ewen. The marriage was performed at 2:30 p. m. by the Rev. Joseph Siczek.

Miss Theresa Gehring was organist. Miss Helen Keizer as soloist sang "Ave Maria." The altars were banked with chrysanthemums and candles.

Escorted by her brother, John Kellerman, the bride wore a gown of broad satin in Mary Queen of Scots style with sweetheart neckline, long pointed sleeves and pinner drapes on the skirt which terminated in a long train. She wore a finger tip veil caught with orange blossoms and carried a prayer book with gardenias and shower streamers with poms.

D.A.R. to Memorialize Clarence B. Fromer At National Shrine

Wiltwyck Chapter D.A.R. has decided to honor the one son of a member who made the supreme sacrifice in World War II by having the name of Clarence B. Fromer, private, 237th combat engineers, inscribed on the wall of the Bell Tower which will be built this year at the Washington Memorial Chapel, Valley Forge, Pa., where the inscription will remain as a symbol of faith and loyalty to America. "Bud" as he was known, was the son of C. O. Fromer and Mrs. Delta Boice Fromer.

The erection of the Bell Tower is the project of the year of the National Society of the D.A.R. The stone memorial chapel which is known as the "Shrine of the American People," was completed in 1903 and the first services were held May 17, 1903. The great carillon has been housed in a temporary wooden structure for many years and is now through the interest of the D.A.R. to be placed in a suitable stone building at the cost of $100,000. In this Bell Tower names of the chapters will be inscribed and on a memorial roll the names of the patriots of the Revolution, World War I and II.

Robert F. Short Weds Dorothy F. Schick At Redeemer Church

The wedding of Miss Dorothy F. Schick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Schick, 18 Reynolds street, to Robert F. Short, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Short, 307 Washington avenue, took place Sunday at 2:30 p. m., in the Evangelical Lutheran Church, of the Redeemer. The Rev. Russell Gaenzle, pastor, performed the double ring ceremony.

Frederick Richens was organist. Mrs. Frank Lawatsch sang, "Still As the Night" by Bohm; "I Love Thee," Greig; and the hymn, "O Perfect Love," during the ceremony. Palms were used for decoration in the chancel and white chrysanthemums and poms were on the altar.

Mr. Schick gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a white duchess satin princess style gown with sweetheart neckline, long pointed sleeves and skirt terminating in a train. Her fingertip veil was attached to a tiara of white seed pearls and orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and white sweet peas.

Mrs. Joseph Benjamin of New Brunswick, N. J., as matron of honor wore a powder blue silk jersey gown with matching headpiece of jersey, veiling and ostrich tips. She wore powder blue long mitts and carried an arm bouquet of yellow roses.

Ralph Short, Jr., Poughkeepsie, was best man for his brother. Ushers were Gary Short, another brother and John Schleede.

A reception for members of the immediate families and bridal party was held at the home of the bride's parents.

Mrs. Short left for a wedding trip to New York City. Mrs. Short chose for traveling a three piece black jersey wool suit with aquamarine accessories, and a corsage of yellow poms. Upon their return, they will make their home at 25 Second avenue.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Short are graduates of Kingston High School. Mrs. Short is also a graduate of Kingston Hospital School of Nursing and is employed as nurse in the office of Dr. Frank A. Johnston. Mr. Short is employed with the Cornell Steamboat Company.

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "Children Are People," etc.)

CATSUP AT THE TABLE

The following question is more concerned with taste than manners: "Is it bad manners to serve meat sauce or catsup in their bottles at the table? The sauce would be especially difficult to take out of its own container." Obviously, catsup bottles have no place on an attractively set table. If I were you, I would buy some cruets and a small tray to stand them on. You can find plenty of pretty and inexpensive ones in almost every glassware department.

Pearls Not Only Choice

Dear Mrs. Post: Are pearls the only piece of jewelry proper for a bride being dressed in white satin? I'd like to wear a lovely gold brooch that was given to my grandmother by her mother on her wedding day? Would it be suitable?

Answer: Certainly, if you want to wear it, it would be suitable to wear a brooch of any kind. The bride also always wears the gift of the groom, if he gives her a piece of jewelry.

The First Dinner of the Newly-Weds

Dear Mrs. Post: I have been married only a short while, and so I've never had this problem before. Next Sunday my husband's parents and mine too, are coming to have dinner with us. Will you tell me which father and mother should have the places of honor at table. Maybe I shouldn't worry about this, but if it matters I want to be sure to do the right thing.

Answer: Your husband should seat your mother on his right and his own mother on his left. If younger members of the family are present, your father could sit on your left and your father-in-law on your right. But with only six at table, you will have to

Conferences Will Be Held To Study River Pollution

Albany, Nov. 11—Water pollution problems in 15 counties in the mid-Hudson and Albany areas of New York state will be studied at two public conferences to be held on November 20 and 21 under auspices of the Joint Legislative Committee on Interstate Cooperation. Assemblyman Harold C. Osterberg, committee chairman, announced today.

The conferences are part of a statewide study, mandated by the 1946 session of the State Legislature, to determine the extent of water pollution in New York state, with a view to the formulation of remedial measures. Senator Chauncey B. Hammond of Elmira, heads the sub-committee on pollution abatement in charge of the conferences.

The November 20 conference, to be held at the Nelson House, Poughkeepsie, will deal with pollution problems in Greene, Columbia, Ulster, Dutchess, Sullivan, Orange, Putnam and Rockland counties. The November 21 conference, which will be held at the Hotel Ten Eyck, Albany, will consider pollution problems in Warren, Washington, Saratoga, Schoharie, Albany, Rensselaer and Schenectady counties.

Objectives Announced
The objectives of the conferences will be to alert the public to the dangers and costliness of polluted waters, to enlist the cooperation of all groups working out a pollution-abatement program and to study ways and means by which pollution-abatement may be achieved. County, city, town and village officials, representatives of major industries, fish and game clubs, conservation groups and health and civic organizations have been invited to participate in the conferences, as has the public.

The subcommittee on pollution-abatement is itself a cross section of the groups and interests which are most concerned with restoring and maintaining clean waters in New York state. Legislative members of the committee include Senators Chauncey B. Hammond, Walter J. Mahoney and Floyd E. Anderson; Assemblymen Elisha T. Barrett, Wheeler Milroe, George W. Foy, and John S. Thompson; Attorney General Nathan L. Goldstein, and C. Chester DuMont, Commissioner of Agriculture.

Advisory Members
Advisory members of the committee include Perry B. Duryea, Conservation Commissioner; Dr. Edward S. Goddard Jr., Commissioner of Health; Dr. M. P. Catherwood, Commissioner of Commerce; Frank C. Moore, State Comptroller; Earl Devendorf, assistant director, sanitation division, Department of Health; W. D. Bresinham, assistant attorney general; Seth G. Hess, director, Interstate Sanitation Commission; James H. Allen, executive secretary, Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin; Martin Hilfinger, president of the Associated Industries of New York Inc.; Karl T. Frederick, chairman of the board of the New York State Conservation Council; Morgan Strong, Executive Secretary of the Conference of Mayors, and Lee Keator, president of the New York State Associations of the Izaak Walton League.

Seal recovered the pelt and collected the county bounty.

ARMISTICE DAY

Hindus, Moslems Concentrate Effort To Stop Rioting

Alarm Is Evidenced Over Clashes; Prestige of Leaders Assailed by Events

By PRESTON GROVER

Bombay, Nov. 11 (AP)—Both Hindu and Moslem leaders are concentrating efforts on ending increasingly widespread riots whose savagery threatens to create an almost unbridgeable gap between two religious communities.

Their efforts indicate clearly their alarm over continued clashes which seem to challenge their ability to master the complex problem of governing India. Impartial observers believe that but their prestige has been assailed and new ammunition provided to critics both at home and abroad.

Surprising to most observers is the violence of Hindu attacks against the Moslems. This comes in recent years by Moslem leaders and by British rule in India that "Hindu riots don't amount to much, but wait until the Moslems cut loose."

To the surprise of almost everyone, Hindu assaults against Moslems in several areas have been at least on par with Moslem attacks.

In previous communal clashes, Hindu casualties have been two or three times as great as Moslems. There is a long tradition of placidity and non-resistance among many sections of the widespread Hindu population, accentuated by the teaching of non-violence as a religious and political weapon by Mahatma Gandhi.

Hindu violence against Moslems has caused many Hindus, especially among younger groups, to assert that nonviolence is finished as a political doctrine. Gandhi himself has rebuked his followers on repeated occasions for their departure from his nonviolent teachings and now he has warned that he will use his most formidable weapon if necessary to bring a cessation of outbreaks.

One of his closest friends, Rajendra Prasad, member of the interim government, said that Gandhi has resolved to "fast unto death" unless disturbances in Bihar stopped.

Bihar is a heavily populated province on the lower Ganges plain adjoining Bengal. It is overwhelmingly Hindu but has small pockets of Moslems just as eastern Bengal is overwhelmingly Moslem with small pockets of Hindus.

The death toll among Moslems in Bihar seems already to have exceeded the deaths of Hindus during previous disorders in eastern Bengal. The latest official roundup estimated fatalities in Bihar at more than 400. Since then various piecemeal reports indicate that several hundred more were killed and undoubtedly most of these were Moslems.

Issued Joint Appeals
To this latest outbreak area, Henry, congress leader and head of interim government, rushed in company with Muslim League associates in the interim government. They travelled together, issued joint appeals, and Nehru warned that continued violence would bring machine guns and bombs if necessary.

This interference of the Central government in the administration of one of the provinces was of itself a strong step. The British Cabinet Mission last summer repeatedly assured Moslems that the greatest amount of local autonomy would be assured provinces. This was intended as protection from interference by the Central government which Moslems felt was in danger of domination by the Hindu majority.

From a political standpoint it was notable that the threat of Central government intervention in Bihar was most forcefully directed at protecting Moslems from Hindus.

Obviously, congress leaders are seeking to demonstrate to the Moslem population that no particularity will be shown to Hindus.

One thing is increasingly clear as disorders progress. That is that there remains a considerable gap between the governing officials at the top and the disturbed population at the bottom. Much time and education is still needed to bridge the gap.

Terry Sells House To Realty Corporation

Albert J. Terry of Los Angeles, California, formerly of Kingston, has sold the homestead property at 277 Albany avenue to The Rurick Realty Corporation, Samuel W. Siegel president, and the 13 room Victorian residence property will be converted into an apartment house. Mr. Siegel is also president of Kingsley Fashions, Inc., clothing manufacturers of 17 Cornell street. The residence property, formerly the home of the late Jay Terry and family, is located on a large plot of ground with a flowing brook at the rear, tennis courts and a three car garage. The sale was negotiated through Walter Caunitz and Daughter, brokers in the Burgevin Building on Fair street.

Some time ago Albert J. Terry, treasurer of O. D. Keep Associates, Inc., publishers of Portnight, "The Magazine of California," purchased the interests of his sister and for about a year the premises were rented. Previous incorporated handled the property with Walter Caunitz acting as broker.

Attention, VETERANS!

THE PLANS FOR YOUR HOME MUST HAVE PROPER MORTGAGE PLANNING!

Here are the facts:

Three discharged veterans needed homes. Each purchased a home under the G.I. Bill of Rights paying $7500 apiece. However, each used different methods of financing, producing considerably different results:

	Amount Borrowed	20 Yrs. Monthly Payments	Total Paid Back on Loan
John	$7500	$45.45	$10,908.00
Richard	$6000	$36.36	$ 8,726.40
Bill	$5000	$30.30	$ 7,272.00

It is interesting to note what a down payment of $1500 by Richard and $2500 by Bill did to cut down monthly payments and what was saved on original cost of the home. We strongly advocate where possible, that veterans put into their purchases of homes as much of their own money as possible.

WHY A SOAP SHORTAGE?

You've Heard Rumors. Here Are the Facts!

1. There is a world-wide shortage of animal fats and of vegetable oils. This shortage affects all of us. For instance, this year soapmakers have been able to obtain only one fifth of the imported oils they used in 1941—far less domestic fats, too.
2. Because of the world-wide shortage, manufacturers are unable to get the amount of fats and oils they need to make not only soaps, but also paints, textiles, tires, leather goods, floor coverings, electrical appliances, etc.
3. In the face of these conditions, American soap manufacturers have done their utmost. They have turned all the fats and oils they have been able to obtain into soap just as quickly as possible.
4. But for the help of American housewives, the shortage of soap would have been far more serious. Last year, more than one out of every nine packages of soap sold was made from used fats saved in America's kitchens.
5. Don't blame your grocer. He is doing his best, like the soapmakers, to get more soap for you. Won't you do your best by saving and turning in every drop of used fats.

President Places Wreath on Tomb

The army took a dim view of its chances of winning the new Congress over to the idea of a compulsory military training program.

War Department legislative advisers told reporters privately they not only doubt that the new session will agree to a peacetime conscription but that the sentiment may be so strong as to dissuade the army from even asking an extension of the wartime draft act.

That law is due to expire in March. Among those who stressed the preparedness theme in Armistice Day statements was Gen. Carl Spaatz, Army Air Forces commander.

"A secure nation," he said, "is a nation able to defend itself against any aggressor, and we in the Army Air Forces are determined that our every effort shall be dedicated to making sure that subsequent armistice celebrations will be observed under free and tranquil circumstances."

W. Stuart Symington, assistant secretary of war for air, termed the occasion "a milestone to remind every American citizen of his obligation to safeguard the future security of the country."

Another critical note was sounded by Jack W. Hardy, national commander of the American Veterans of World War 2, who asserted "we have been creating wealth only to destroy it."

"Law enforcement has broken down under the weight of misguided millions because many of our elected public officials are weak in character and lacking in courage," Hardy's statement said.

"Our moral standards have been added to the proceedings of sophisticated pedagogues whose illicit and lascivious thinking is publicly supported by the country over every day by a movie colony that sheds its wives or husbands with the seasons as the trees shed their leaves."

"Our policies of government and labor are influenced by the widely publicized mutterings of night club and movie idols who—though they certainly have a right to their opinions—know nothing about government."

"We indulge in labor-management strife which destroys production to such appalling extent that its economic value far out exceeds all other losses combined."

only, and has nothing to do with defense planning.

In general, the whole idea of fixed defenses is "as dead as the dodo bird," Adm. John H. Towers, commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet, told a news conference recently.

Even the Navy's plans for a one and one-third billion dollar development of Guam and Saipan are to be cut down "drastically," he said, although construction of a strong base at Guam, second only to Pearl Harbor in size and facilities, retains top priority. And since the island has been American property for 50 years, no United Nations discussions could hinder its defense future.

Japanese Clerk Is Winner With Abacus

Tokyo, Nov. 11 (AP)—A Japanese clerk, nimble-flicking the beads of the century-old abacus, easily defeated an American operating a modern-day calculating machine in a speed and accuracy contest before a large audience today.

Kiyoshi Matsuzaki's contraption of wire and beads proved superior in addition, division and subtraction problems while Pvt. Thomas N. Wood of Deering, Mo., triumphed only in multiplication.

Matsuzaki won the final heat—a composite problem involving the four phases of mathematics.

The U. S. Army newspaper Stars and Stripes sponsored the contest after Matsuzaki, an employee of the Japanese Ministry of Communications, had challenged the Americans.

Urges Testing of All New York Crown Pea Seed

Geneva, N. Y.—An unprecedented amount of New York crown pea seed will be available for 1947 plantings, but it should be subjected to rigid testing for germination and possible disease contamination according to officials of the seed testing laboratory at the Experiment Station here.

Normally very little pea seed is produced in this State most of it coming from the West, say the Station workers. Due to the rapid maturity of peas this past season, however, many fields were refused for canning purposes and were diverted to seed production. Nearly 1,000 samples of New York crown pea seed stocks have already been received in the seed laboratory as compared with a few dozen samples at most under normal conditions.

The majority of the samples represent stocks of Laxton and perfection, it is said, with several lots of Anne, King, Climax, Roger's Chief and Surprise. A few samples of Alderman, Famous, Miracle, Pride, and Shasta have also been received. The samples have been sent in mostly by canning companies and local representatives of wholesale seed houses rather than by private growers.

"The testing of all locally grown pea seed is extremely important in order to detect the few low germinating and disease-infested lots among the really excellent stocks available," say the Station seed analysts. "About 49 per cent of all lots tested thus far have germinated 95 per cent or better, while 30 per cent have contained 90 to 94 per cent of live seed. Eleven per cent of the samples contained from 85 to 89 per cent live seed."

"Thus, 90 per cent of the samples tested may be rated as good or excellent from the standpoint of germination, about 5 per cent were of doubtful value, while another 5 per cent were absolutely worthless for planting purposes."

"Organisms causing pod-blight and foot-rot were found in about 2 per cent of the samples, and the infestation may have been missed in other lots. Since these diseases cause serious injury, it is recommended that all seed known to contain disease germs be discarded. Certain organisms causing pod rot are also present in New York crown pea seed, but they usually occur in low germinating seed which is generally discarded for seeding purposes."

"The varietal purity of the seed stocks cannot be accurately determined in a laboratory test. It is known, however, that an occasional seed of Alaska is present in seed of other varieties. Where seed of several varieties are stored on the same premises, precautions should be taken to prevent the mixing of bags and loss of identifying labels."

"Locally grown pea seed in general is light in color, very wrinkled, and free from blemishes. Seed of the Laxton variety is noticeably light in color as compared to western-grown stock. In number of seeds per ounce, the 1946 crop of New York peas is definitely higher than the 1941 to 1945 crops of western-grown seed. The approximate numbers of seeds per ounce of locally and western grown seed, respectively, for six varieties is as follows: Climax, 186 and 160; Laxton, 127 and 106; Perfection, 143 and 133; Pride, 133 and 110; Roger's Chief, 163 and 147; and Surprise, 150 and 135. This has an important bearing on rate of seeding and hence the amount of seed required for a given acreage."

Louisiana Tornado Kills One, Two Are Injured

Baton Rouge, La., Nov. 11 (AP)—Sheriff Lamartine Bouchaud, of Pontre Coupee Parish, said today that one Negro was killed and that two others, a mother and her baby, were injured in a tornado which struck between Morganza and New Roads, La., late Sunday afternoon.

The New Orleans Charity Hospital, which received the two cases did not give out the names, and telephone connections between here and the affected points were down.

Anglo Remembrance Day

London, Nov. 11 (AP)—Britain observed the first joint remembrance day for her dead of the first and second World Wars yesterday, when King George VI unveiled a new inscription on the cenotaph in Whitehall while thousands of his countrymen solemnly looked on. The simple inscription, which hitherto recorded the dates 1914-1918, now carries the legend, 1939-1945. Standing next to Britain's monarch during the ceremony were Princess Elizabeth, Prime Minister Clement Attlee and Winston Churchill. Other members of the royal family watched from a balcony of the Home Office.

gress. When this occurs, we must examine our respective positions with stern and critical analysis to exclude any attempt to tamper with the public interest in order to achieve personal or partisan advantage.

"The change in the majority in the Congress does not alter our domestic or foreign interests or problems. In foreign affairs we have a well-charted course to follow. Our foreign policy has been developed and executed on a bipartisan basis. I have done my best to strengthen and extend this practice."

"Members of both parties in and out of the congress have participated in the inner council in preparing, and in actually carrying out, the foreign policies of our government. It has been a national effort to be a national program insofar as the secretary of state and I are concerned. I firmly believe that our Republican colleagues who have worked intelligently and cooperatively with us in the task will do so in the future."

Asks No Personal Motives

"My concern is not about those in either party who know the seriousness of the problems which confront us in our foreign affairs. Those who share great problems are united and not divided by them. My concern is lest any in either party should seek in this field an opportunity to achieve personal notoriety or partisan advantage by exploitation of the sensational or by the mere creation of controversy."

"We are set upon a hard course. An effort by either the executive or the legislative branch of the government to embarrass the other for partisan gain would bring frustration to our country. To follow the course with honor to ourselves and with benefit to our country, we must look beyond and above ourselves and our party interests for the true bearing."

"As president of the United States I am guided by a simple formula: to do in all cases, from day to day, without regard to narrow political considerations, what seems to me to be best for the welfare of our people. Our search for that welfare must always be based upon a progressive concept of government."

"I shall cooperate in every proper manner with members of the Congress, and my hope and prayer is that this spirit of cooperation will be reciprocated."

"To them, one and all, I pledge faith with faith, and promise to meet good will with good will."

have more seats than the last constituent assembly. Taking this into account, the interior ministry figured net gains of 20, 12, 14 and 16 seats, respectively, for the Communists, Leftist rally, Rightists and Independents, and net losses of three and 25, respectively, for the M.R.P. and Socialists, among the 544 deputies elected from continental France and Corsica.

In popular votes, incomplete returns gave the Communists 4,966,786, M.R.P. 4,312,281, Socialists 3,132,293, Leftist Rally 1,910,086, Republican Party of Liberty 2,247,413 and minor parties 513,687. The total vote cast was expected to approach 20,000,000.

Predicts Tripartism

Socialist Andre Philip, former finance minister, expressed belief that no one or two parties could get a majority "with the exception of a Communist-M.R.P. coalition, which seems difficult to realize."

He predicted "a new tripartism that could be either a Communist-Socialist-M.R.P. coalition or a reconstitution of the former popular front with Communists, Socialists and the Leftist rally."

Individual candidates elected included President-Foreign Minister Bidault; Communist Leaders Thorez and Duclos; Former Interim President Felix Gouin, Socialist; prewar Premier Paul Reynaud; Edouard Herriot and Edouard Daladier; and Rene Capitant, head of the Gaullist Union and education minister under the provisional presidency of Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

Herriot Mentioned

Losses of the Socialists, who called a national congress for next Sunday to "consider the situation," left the way open for Herriot, a radical socialist, to become a possible arbitrator between the Communists and the M.R.P., and he was mentioned for president.

The second House of Parliament, the 515-member council of the republic, will be chosen December 8 by an electoral college of 85,000 to be elected November 25. Both Houses will pick the president after December 24. With legislative approval, he will name the premier, who will form a cabinet.

Bavarian School Opened to Train For Free Press

By GODFREY ANDERSON

A. P. Newsfeatures

Nurnberg—Bavarian editors, faced with a grave problem in finding staffs to fill the columns of their newspapers, have opened their own school of journalism in Munich.

Most German journalists became party members or resigned themselves to serving the Nazi propaganda machine when the Third Reich killed all freedom of the press. Now they find themselves barred from licensed newspapers in the American zone. A minority, which refused to serve the Nazi press, sought other work; some went underground; some suffered or died in concentration camps.

Today survivors among these men are working again in their old jobs. But many of them are old and many are in bad health after the privations they suffered. There are no young trained men and women to take their place. Even publishers and editors themselves are in many instances new to their jobs.

White-haired Dr. Edmund Goldschagg, publisher of the biggest Bavarian newspaper, the Sud-Deutsche Zeitung of Munich, described the problem to his fellow publishers. The new school of journalism, he said, would train 80 to 90 students in a course which would last from three to four months. The students would be selected from over 500 applicants and would be screened by the Germans themselves. Dr. Otto Groth, of Frankfurt, would be principal of the school and lectures would be given by newspapermen, university professors and economic experts.

Results of preliminary questioning among the students showed some astonishing results of twelve years of Nazi education. Dr. Goldschagg said. Not one of those examined was able to give a suitable answer to the question: "What is politics?"

Most had never heard of the parties in the Weimar republic. None knew that Schiller had been professor of history at Jena.

Grand Jury Will Hear Embezzlement Details

New York, Nov. 11 (AP)—The bizarre story of the alleged embezzlement of $900,000 from the Mergenthaler Linotype Company will be unfolded before the November grand jury this week, Brooklyn District Attorney Miles F. McDonald announced.

McDonald said over the week-end his office had completed the first part of the investigation and the principal actors of this thing are all in custody. He said he expected indictments would be handed up during the week.

The last of five men held in the case, James Collins, also known as Julius Davis and Julius Lobel, was arraigned Saturday in Brooklyn felony court and remanded to jail without bail.

Under arrest in addition to Collins, are William Arthur Nickel, 40, ex-bookkeeper-cashier of the Mergenthaler firm, charged with larceny and forgery; and Isadore Rappaport, Joseph Milstein and Irving (Izzy the Bell) Cohen, all similarly charged with larceny and forgery.

Joseph West, partner in a check cashing firm, is held in $250,000 bail as a material witness.

Meanwhile, Assistant District Attorney Joseph Hoey and Police Lt. Grover C. Brown, were en route to Hollywood by train. They plan to interview film actress Sally Haines who shared a safe deposit box with Collins in New York.

Police Say Woman May Be Dead; Was Kidnaped Sept. 27

Mt. Holly, N. J., Nov. 11 (AP)—State police said today an intensive all-night search in Lebanon state forest by 40 State Troopers and F. B. I. agents was continuing in the belief that pretty 26-year-old Mrs. Mary Kimmy, who was kidnaped September 27 might have been murdered and her body hidden in the area.

The search was begun after a black 1937 Ford sedan with Ohio license plates, which state police said was found in the kidnaping was found abandoned yesterday in the forest by a party of duck hunters.

State Police Identification Expert Arthur Haussler said buttons from a woman's clothing and hairpins were found in the car, along with a receipted repair bill which he said definitely linked it to Chalmers Laubaugh, an ex-convict whom the F. B. I. was searching for in the case.

The theory that Mrs. Kimmy might have been slain and her body hidden in the dense woods was advanced by State Police St. Thomas Forkin of the Columbus Barracks who led the search party.

He added it also was possible that the kidnapper might have abandoned the car and hitchhiked with the girl on nearby Route 40.

Mrs. Kimmy was kidnaped at gun point from a room which she and her husband had rented at Little Silver, more than 45 miles from here. Her husband, Sgt. Glynn F. Kimmy of the U. S. Army Signal Corps, was stationed at Fort Monmouth.

The F. B. I. said Mrs. Kimmy testified against Laubaugh during his trial on a Mann Act charge and that she had told her husband she was afraid of him.

New Orleans Department Saves Big Sugar Stock

New Orleans, Nov. 11 (AP)—Approximately 18,000,000 pounds of scarce raw sugar was safe today because of the combined efforts of the New Orleans Fire Department and six fire tugs.

A fire at the docks of the American sugar refinery at nearby Arabi, fanned by a high wind, spread along the company's docks and caused damages estimated by plant manager N. B. Scott at $3,000,000. Scott said that about 500,000 pounds of raw sugar were destroyed and that only quick work by firemen saved the 18,000,000 pounds in a nearby warehouse.

Fire Chief Howard Dey said the refinery proper was not damaged and that work probably would be resumed within a week. Origin of the blaze was not known.

Death Is Possible Suicide

Hollywood, Nov. 11 (AP)—The death of beautiful red-haired Jeanette Grae Mack, 22, former Earl Carroll show girl, was listed by coroner as death from "possible suicide" today as he prepared to call for an autopsy. The death Saturday of Mrs. Mack, estranged wife of Robert W. Mack, aircraft executive, was tentatively ascribed by Brown to an overdose of sleeping tablets. Radio Policeman D. D. Williams quoted Mack as saying that before she was found in a coma she had called on him to attempt a reconciliation.

Wadlin Lauds Ideals Of Thomas Jefferson

Assemblyman John F. Wadlin spoke before the Kerhonkson Parent Teacher Association

Wednesday, calling attention to the great "spirit of service" which had marked the life of Thomas Jefferson. His courage, independence, and willingness to stand for justice to all were outstanding and Assemblyman Wadlin said certainly the opportunity for such type of service is present today. In part Mr. Wadlin said:

"It is not too much for the people of our great country to ask for the highest morality in government affairs, for the absolutely impartial treatment of every citizen or group, regardless of how little power of influence they have at the polls. If these are the real needs of this republic, we must find a way to have it known to all office-holders in every nook and cranny that the people are reasonable and wish to back office-holders in their refusal of favors to small powerful groups. That is where we definitely come into the picture."

"Let us remember that great progress and a great future are ahead of us and do all we can to prepare for that future. We should study and work to control ourselves, limit the power of greedy men, and spend every ounce of energy we can in supplying courage to our representatives in this land of ours."

Scenes at All-State Music Festival Here

Among the scenes at the Sectional All-State Music Festival held at Kingston High School Friday and Saturday were the girls' choir, arriving early Friday afternoon with band equipment. The girls were members of the girls' choir and mixed chorus. sic, was presented as director of the festival band. With almost 150 pieces the band completely filled the enlarged stage in the high school auditorium. Four selections were played again showing the contrast possible in band music. Of interest was the development of the fugue through the different parts of the band in the arrangement of Bach's Fugue in G Minor. A rousing band march, National Anthem, Bagley, brought the entire concert to a most appropriate close.

Greetings to the visitors were given by Arthur J. Laidlaw, superintendent of schools. George A. Christopher, vice president in charge of bands of the New York State School Music Association, brought greetings to the local school and expressed the appreciation of the association to the local committee who had planned the festival. He also presided during the concert.

Final rehearsals for Saturday night's program were held Saturday afternoon in the high school auditorium. An interesting side-light was the recording of a selection by the orchestra, orchestra and band.

Directors Hold Meeting
The directors from the 39 schools represented at the festival met Saturday morning in the Myron J. Michael School library. Mr. Christopher also presided at this meeting.

A general discussion of the policies of the association was held and some suggestions made for future festivals. A serious discussion evolved around the lack of material available in the eastern section for an ensemble.

The matter of competitions and summer training camps was considered and suggestions made. The All State Center for directors will be held in Rochester, December 6 and 7 when more definite plans will be decided. Practically unanimous approval was given to the plan of a sectional festival to precede the present plan of having the directors' conference at the Kingston school.

This year there will be no orchestra at the Rochester festival. The students remained in Kingston for the entire week-end and then left immediately following the concert for their homes.

Plunges to Death

New York, Nov. 11 (AP)—Mrs. Max Hill, 38, wife of a radio news commentator (N.B.C.), died last night in a plunge from the window of her seventh-floor apartment in midtown. Detective Arthur Woods said Hill, a former member of the Associated Press editorial staff, told him Mrs. Hill had been ill for some time and had returned last Friday from a convalescent trip.

Railways Are Operating

London, Nov. 11 (AP)—Moscow radio said today that all Russian railways destroyed by the Germans during the war had been put back into operation, as well as some 622 miles of new track. The dispatch said that all large ports wrecked during the war were also working under full capacity.

Finds Supposed Burglar Was "Off Beam" Pheasant

While hunters wandering far afield in search of pheasants have reported poor luck this year, Elmer Grant of New York found one awaiting him when he came up Friday to investigate a supposed burglary at his Maple Terrace House in Lawrenceville. The bird had crashed through the glass in the front door taking the curtains with him and then dropped dead in the end of the front hall, 15 or 20 feet distant. John Delay noticed the round hole in the front door and then notified Mr. Grant, who came up from the city Friday, to find out what it was all about.
